productivity; and (vi) closure lay-off and retrenchment.

(c) Government has repeatedly made it clear that there is no policy of privatisation of public undertakings that the provisions of the FERA and MRTP Act not be diluted to the disadvantage of indigenous industrial development, vis-a-vis multi-nationals and monopolies and that the issues on the need to modernise would be discussed with trade unions. I had also appealed to the trade union organisations and workers to call off the strike in the larger interests of the public sector itself and suggested that the issues raised by the workers could be dicussed across the table in a spirit of cooperation between Government, workers and management.
